

Acknowledgement to Peter Jackman

The Intumescent Fire Seals Association (IFSA) held its 33rd Annual General Meeting on February 24th, 2015.

This was the first AGM without Peter Jackman, who sadly passed away in May 2014. Peter was instrumental in founding the Association over 30 years ago, and throughout IFSA's history he remained a staunch and active supporter of its objectives - to educate on and promote the appropriate use of intumescent fire protection systems in order to save lives. He was tireless in his efforts to represent IFSA and express its views, and he made considerable contributions to its technical output.

Peter's passing is a great loss to the Association and the fire protection community as a whole. Nonetheless, IFSA continues with Peter's vision for a fire-safe construction environment and strives to ensure that the manufacturers of intumescent sealing products have a voice of influence in the industry. In doing so, IFSA forms part of his legacy. It was a responsibility that those attending the meeting wished to acknowledge.
